

The windows at St. Teresa of Avila in Price Hill are uniquely designed in the style of the oldest stained glass in the world! The side windows are patterned on the "prophet windows" in the clerestory of Germany's Augsburg Cathedral. The Augsburg windows, made in 1065, are the world's oldest stained-glass windows still in their original settings. St. Teresa of Avila's windows are larger and grouped in threes, but include otherwise exact reproductions of three of the five Augsburg windows.

Bells for the second church building were purchased with the money from St. Teresa of Avila school children.

Made in 1851, St. Teresa Church was the first 11-bell set ever cast in the United States.

FEAST DAY OCT 15

"These windows are absolutely unique in design. To our knowledge, there is no other church in the world which has such a set of prophet and saint windows in that style." - Gabriel Mayer, Franz Mayer Co., Munich

"Not a spade in the land 'til the sum is in hand" - slogan for the capital campaign to build the current church

Pastor Msgr. William "Wild Bill" Anthony and architect Jack Burdick took a trip through Europe for design inspiration.

The carved Romanesque facade is based on the Abbey of Saint-Gilles in Arles, France. The interior columns and arches are based on St. Apollinare Nuovo and St. Francisco in Ravenna, Italy.

Patron saint of headache sufferers and writers.

St. Teresa's has held an annual Corpus Christi procession for more than 40 years. Because of the coronavirus, the procession between St. Teresa and St. William has been cancelled for the first time since its revival in 1998.
